BELOW PAR

BY SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
Democratic Representative in Congress for the Third Indiana District 1939-1940.

In the four Hoover years, 1928-1932, inclusive, national income produced averaged $60.8 billions; in the six New Deal years, 1933-1938, it averaged $57.6 billions. On a per capita basis, income in Hoover's four years averaged $507; in the six New Deal years, $542, or 10 percent less.

Other facts to be considered are increase of population, taxes, debt and cost of living. In the New Deal years the government took from a smaller income a larger tax by a billion dollars a year, and increased the debt 3 billions a year.

One point in favor of the New Deal years is that the cost of living averaged 75.5 as against 80 under Mr. Hoover. The Roosevelt dollar brought somewhat more goods than the Hoover dollar. But against this is the higher tax and the debt charged against future income.

The Hoover years were nothing to brag about. But it must be a sobering thought to sincere New Dealers that the Roosevelt years have not equalled them.

But let us omit the Hoover years, 1929 boom, 1932 bust, 1933-24-25 have been adopted by government agencies as "par." It was neither boom nor bust. Let us compare the "par" period with 1939, war bulge and all.

We have been "shooting for par." What's the score?

In 1939 the department of Commerce estimates national income produced at $68.5 billion dollars. In the three par years, 1933-24-25, it was $71.6 billions, or nearly three billions more at a time when taxes and debts were being reduced, not increased.

But if 1923-24-25 was par—100, then 1939 ought to be 114 because we have now 114 people to divide our income among as against 100 people then. In other words, we should now have an income of $81.6 billions at least, to have the same per capita income now as then. Instead, we had $68.5 billions in 1939, or $13.1 billions less, on a population basis, than we had seventeen years ago.

Americans Know Answer

The American people know what it would mean to repeat the law against a third term." Willkie continued. "It means the destruction of our two-party system. It means the complete mastery of us all by a single party, and that party under the orders of a single man."

The Democratic party—the real Democratic party—is thus faced this year with a dilemma. The registered Democrats must decide whether they are going to adhere to the principles of the Democratic party, or submit to the unprincipled rule of our New Deal kidnappers."

The Democratic party "has been in power nominally" for the last few years, Willkie said.

Refers to Garner, Tydings

"What has been the influence of men like John Nance Garner of Texas; of men like Senator Tydings of Maryland, or Senator Byrd, or Senator Glass? These men, staunch Democrats, and a host of their like, have had to fight against a new party, and a rash and over-bearing party of the New Deal."

If a president is elected for a third term, he argued, "there will never again be any limit upon continual self-appointment of presidents to office, by any means x x x. If this principle dies, it will be dead forever."

Willkie said that he, himself, was the only candidate fighting today for the principles of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson.

"The principles of the Democratic party can be preserved only

Warfield Will Vote For Willkie To Save The Democratic Party

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 (AP)—Henry M. Warfield, Democrat, adjutant general of Maryland during the World War, said tonight he would vote for Wendell L. Willkie, Republican presidential nominee.

He said Willkie's election "offers the only hope for the salvation of the Democratic party... as a life-long Democrat I believe that every thinking Democrat should give his best support to Mr. Willkie."

Ankara Newspaper Hints Turkey Will Soon Enter War in Balkans

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 29 (Tuesday) (AP)—The Ankara government newspaper Ulus, commenting as Turkey kept close watch on the Italian invasion of Greece, declared today that "we prefer the hell of war to a dishonorable peace."

The editorial appeared as the Turkish republic celebrated its twentieth birthday still undecided whether to join its ally, Britain, in aiding its neighbor and ally, Greece, to resist the Italians.

Keep Troops Ready

However, Turkey kept her vaunted 2,000,000 bayonets poised as capital sources pointed to a recent government statement that Turkey would aid Greece in the event of an Italian attack—if Britain made good her promise to the Greeks. The newspaper said further:

"No one can assure the citizens until the storm of fire is over that our roofs will not catch after it. We are passing through a test of fate which demands clear hearts, strong confidence and complete cooperation until death. We recognize no limit of sacrifice."

Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu was understood to have reported on the Greek developments at a two and a half hour meeting of the Turkish inner cabinet.

Confers with Greeks

President Gen. Ismet Inonu received the Greek ambassador early this morning and talked by telephone with Greece's Premier Gen. John Metaxas, it was reported officially.

However, there was no official indication that Turkey intended to go immediately to Greece's aid.

The Turkish attitude, foreign observers said, was believed to depend somewhat on Russia, which is known to have ambitions on the Dardanelles straits that control entry into the Black Sea.

Willkie Will Reply To Roosevelt Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 28. (AP)—

The Republican National Committee announced tonight that Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie would reply in a nation-wide broadcast tomorrow to President Roosevelt's Madison Square Garden address.

Willkie will speak over the CBS network from 3:15 to 3:30 p.m. (EST) from his special train at Parkersburg, W. Va.

The address will be under the sponsorship of the women's division of the Associated Willkie Clubs of America.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The great draft lottery of 1940 will take place tomorrow.

In the interdepartmental auditorium, promptly at noon, President Roosevelt will deliver a brief speech. Secretary Stimson, blindfolded, will reach into the historic gold fish bowl of the World War draft drawing, and extract a blue capsule, containing a slip upon which a number is printed.

Other notables will follow him, and then the task of drawing approximately 8,500 capsules will be turned over to teams especially trained to do the job quickly and accurately. The process will continue until all the numbers have been drawn, if it takes until Wednesday morning.

Plan Patriotic Ceremony

The army band will play outside the auditorium. A detail of 500 uniformed war veterans, each carrying a flag, will form a guard of honor. Army planes from nearby fields will roar overhead.

All preparations had been completed today and selective service headquarters was calmness itself. What activity there was came mostly from an influx of telephone calls from young men unable to determine their serial numbers or as the drawing proceeds.

uncertain about some phase of the drawing.

In practical effect, it works out this way.

Local draft boards have assigned serial numbers to the cards signed in their areas on registration day. If, for example, the first number drawn should be 258, the number first to appear in the world war lottery, it would mean that the man in each area whose serial number is 258 would be the first to be called for a year in the army—unless he is deferred.

Order Number One

He will be assigned "order number one." The second number drawn will determine "order number two," and so on until all have been drawn. There is, however, one exception. The number of men registered in each area varies. When a number higher than the highest serial number for a particular area is drawn it is simply regarded as a blank so far as that area is concerned.

Thus if 258 were drawn first again and some area had only 257 registrants, it would be disregarded in that area. The first number drawn would be 257 to be drawn would become "order number one" for the army.

The air ministry tersely declared a "strong force of Royal Air Force bombers" attacked the works at Pilzen, Bohemia last night.

But the ministry's news service, in an amplification of the formal communiqué, said the British bombers set the plant on fire after a 750-mile flight from the English coast through dirty weather.

Never relaxing their attacks on the "invasion coast" opposite England, Blenheim bombers of the coastal command were reported by the ministry news service to have hit a power station at the Nazi-held French naval base of Lorient.

The Querqueville airfield near Cherbourg also was bombed, the news service said, with direct hits on a hangar.

The British concentrated on oil refineries in other night bombing forays. The air ministry said six were attacked: two at Hamburg and others at Hannover, Ostermorr, Geisenkirchen and Mavdenburg. Other targets reported raided were fourteen German air bases, and the rail and water hubs of Germany's communications system.

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, maintaining strict silence as to why he hurriedly returned from bomb-battered Britain, announced today that he would speak tomorrow night in a nation-wide (CBS) broadcast.

His announcement stimulated as much political discussion and as little explanation as did the circumstances of his return by Clipper plane yesterday when he remarked that when he broke his silence he would "have a lot to say."

The fifty-two-year-old envoy, a friend and political supporter of President Roosevelt—gave no indication of the nature of his address or whether he would reply to reports, which preceded his return, that he was not entirely sympathetic with the administration's foreign policy.

The diplomat will speak from 9 to 9:30 (EST) during a radio hour originally reserved by the Demo-

Asks about Attitude of Garner, Nice, Tydings, Byrd and Glass

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 28. (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie described the two-term tradition tonight as "the common law of the United States" and said President Roosevelt's re-election would mean "the destruction of our two-party system."

A "New Deal Party," he continued in a prepared address, has grown in Washington "out of the Democratic party, and fungus-like, has suffocated it."

"It is this New Deal Party," he continued, "that now makes its ultimate grasp for power—the repeal of the rule against the third term—that its reign may continue in perpetuity."

Saying a principle against a third term has been tested by genera-

President Delivers Major Political Address in New York

RAPS WILLKIE, TAFT AND HAMILTON FISH

Asserts They Are Trying To Create a Sense of Fear in America

By MAX BOYD

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Roosevelt said tonight that Republican leaders who now accuse him of neglecting America's defense had tried repeatedly in years gone by to "sabotage" the administration's efforts "to increase our defenses."

In a major political address broadcast from Madison Square Garden, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"I now brand as false the statement being made by Republican campaign orators, day after day and night after night, that the rearming of America was slow, that it is hamstring and impeded, that it will never be able to meet threats from abroad."

He cited statements and votes by which he said Republican leaders—prior to the present election campaign—had opposed increased defense appropriations and tried to block aid to Great Britain.

Leaves for Washington

The president left soon after his address for Washington, where he will confer at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning with Secretary Hull and Undersecretary Sumner Welles regarding the hostilities between Italy and Greece. As soon as the state department receives official word of the fighting, a presidential secretary indicated, a proclamation of neutrality will be issued and Grecian assets in this country placed under a treasury licensing system.

He has broken sacred promises through which he was elected and therefore should not be trusted with greater power.

His election would increase the moral confusion abroad in the world.

Only a man of infinite concern could do the things he has done.

I am sure that none who prefer the infinite wisdom to be found in the story of the ages can vote for him. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Dodd found a "time-bomb" in the box which members of the crew had held enough nitro-glycerine and said two quarts—to have blown the ship "clear out of the water."

Dodd, they said, picked up the box and, "praying all the way, made his way to the decks where a member of the crew helped him toss the bomb overboard."

Very few of the passengers, troops or crewmen were aware "how close they were to disaster," these informants said.

Mussolini Hurls Fascist Troops Against Greeks

Confers with Hitler and Says Axis Powers Are in Accord

By The Associated Press
ROME, Oct. 28.—Premier Mussolini hurled his Fascist forces against Greece today in a drive for air and naval bases from which to fight the British in the Mediterranean and then, after a long conference with Adolf Hitler at Florence, announced complete Axis agreement "on all present questions."

An official announcement said the Italians took action against pro-British Greece after expiration of a three-hour ultimatum, presented at 3 a.m., demanding permission to occupy strategic Greek territory for the duration of the war.

From that point on Rome was silent on the manner in which its army, air force and navy followed up the ultimatum, official quarters here saying all they knew was what they read in news reports.

Officially, the principal reasons for the drive against Greece were given as Italy's desire to protect Greek neutrality against British plans to occupy Greece's island of Crete, as well as the release of Albanians from reported Greek "oppressions."

The Italians accused the Greeks of violating their own neutrality on five points by:

1. Allowing the British fleet to use Greek ports.
2. Allowing the RAF to refuel at Greek bases.
3. Letting British spies operate from Greece.
4. Entering into a secret military agreement with the British.
5. Provocative action against Albanians on both sides of the border of Greece and Italian-occupied Albania.

While planes cruised protectively in rainy skies overhead, Il Duce and Hitler talked for more than two hours amidst the reconnaissance splendors of the fourteenth century Florentine Palazzo Vecchio scene of other historic Axis policy-making conferences.

A communiqué issued after the meeting broke up said merely their conversations took place "in the spirit of the alliance between the two countries developed as always in the most cordial form and show a complete identity of views on all present questions."

sional record, contended that the record of Republican leadership, in both international and military affairs, was one of "timidity, weakness and shortsightedness."

It is the same record of timidity, weakness and shortsightedness which governed the policy of the confused, reactionary governments in France and England before the war," he continued.

Declaring that "falsifications, if repeated over and over, were likely to create a sense of fear and doubt in the mind of some Americans, Mr. Roosevelt had this to say as to the state of the national defense:

Praises U. S. Navy

"Today our navy is at a peak of efficiency and fighting strength. Ship for ship, and man for man, it is as powerful and efficient as any that ever sailed the seas in the history of America."

The president said he proposed to "indict" the Republican leaders "who now disparage our defenses" with "what they themselves said in the days before this election year about how adequate our defenses already were."

Quotes Rep. Fish

To Rep. Fish of New York, ranking Republican member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, he attributed the 1938 statement that "we have the largest and most powerful navy we ever had, except for two years after the World War, and the greatest air forces we ever had and a match for any nation."

He said former President Hoover had "complained" the same year that "we shall be spending nine-hundred million dollars more than any nation on earth. We are leading in the arms race."

Furthermore, Mr. Roosevelt continued, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) had opposed what the senator called a "super-super navy bill" in 1938 with the declaration that the United States already had "an incomparably efficient navy."

"The plain fact is," the president said, "that when the naval expansion bill of 1938 was submitted to Congress the Republican leaders jumped in to fight it."

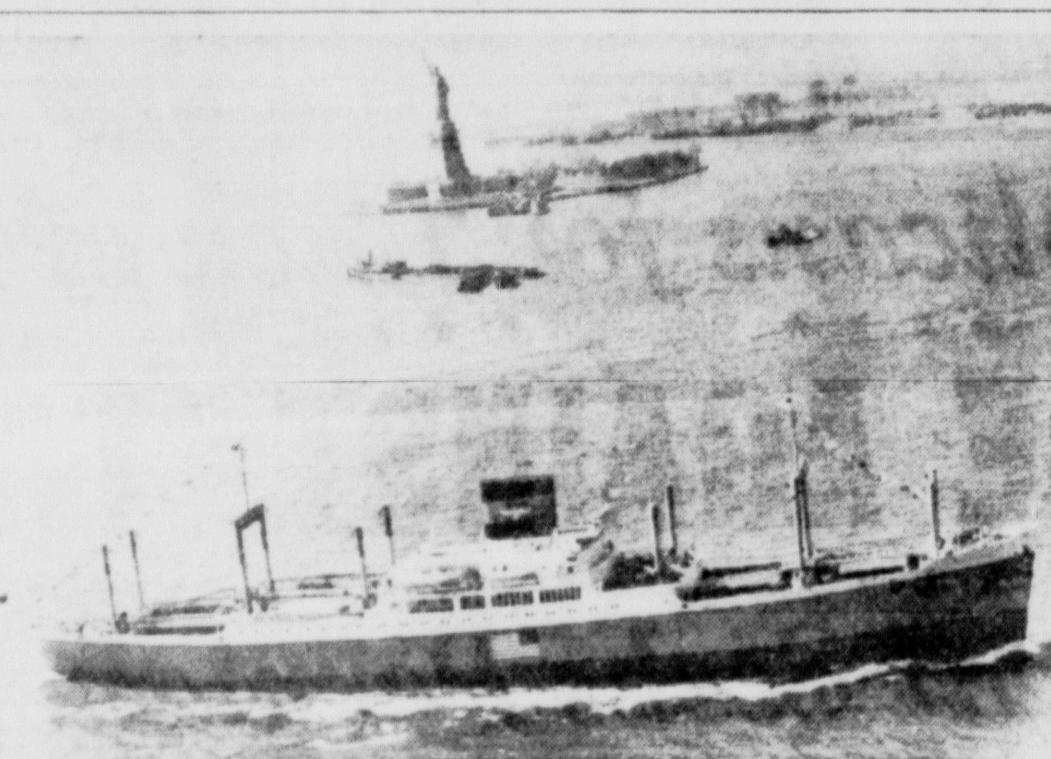

Among those Republican leaders, he said, were Senator McNary of Oregon, the present Republican candidate for vice president; Senator Ney (R-N.D.) and Rep. Fish.

Brings Up Aid To Britain

Also, he contended, "Republican campaign orators and leaders" were now yelling "me too" regarding help to Britain "but last fall they had their chance to vote to give aid to Britain and other democracies—and they turned it down."

He referred the president said, to "out" in his ordinary living expenses "over three or four years."

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Italy's invasion of Greece has dropped a match in a powder barrel that could blow up in the faces of Britain's Nazi-Fascist foes. It may be also that Turkey's intentions and what Russia would do, seems improbable.

It is also unthinkable that the Hitler-Mussolini team would risk attacking Greece without carefully weighing the probable role of Turkey and Russia. The Fascist attack on Greece hints that they may have set the stage carefully in Romania to induce Russian quiescence so long as they do not attack Turkey, Russia's friendly neighbor.

The Italian spearhead from Albania seems aimed first at Saloniaka on the Aegean coast of Greece.

It is some hundred miles closer air flight from there to Alexandria and the Suez canal than from any base in Italy.

The logical British answer to the new Axis move is occupation of the Greek island of Crete and Athens.

Even if the reported action at Corfu goes unconfirmed, however, there are elements in the situation possibly more favorable to Greece than the overwhelming odds now against her would indicate. It remains to be seen whether Axis strategy has not drawn Turkey also into the struggle as a British ally, and what Russia will do.

Russia's Role in Doubt

Russia's role is the vital missing piece in the war picture puzzle. If Turkey joins in at the approaching nod of Moscow, that powder barrel of a war is bound to go off.

A sea fight there would mean that British naval units are stabbing to cut or confuse Italy's communications with her Albanian bridgehead across the Adriatic.

Answers Will Be Given by Willkie On Radio Tonight

Another Broadcast in Series Is Scheduled for GOP Nominee

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor
NEW YORK, Oct. 28—Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president, will give another one of his questions and answers broadcasts Tuesday night, from 10 until 10:30 o'clock, Eastern Standard time, on the Red network (WEAF) of the National Broadcasting Company.

FOR HALLOWEEN

you'll want plenty of Fresh Candies

FANNY FARMER Candies are extra delicious, and extra wholesome as well—made in that old-time "homemade" way from the finest foods.

The cream is fresh, rich cream...the butter, fresh butter in 1-lb. prints...chocolate, nuts, fruits are the best in the world market. Yet these highest quality foods are not the only reason why Fanny Farmer Candies are always so delicious, so wholesome. Every pound is made in a spotless studio by expert cooks—with the same care you would use at home.

Political discussions Tuesday night will include one by C. Wayland Brooks, under auspices of the Republican National Committee, from 10:30 to 11 o'clock. He will speak over a coast-to-coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Other speakers scheduled for the airways include Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard and Representative Marvin Jones, of Texas, from 10:30 to 11 p.m., over WEAF-NBC; Dorothy Thompson at 10 p.m. on the Mutual system; Earl Browder at 10:45 over the same network, and Norman Thomas over WJZ-NBC at 7:30 p.m.

Conscription Specials

Congscription will dominate Tuesday's airways, with all major chains planning a complete broadcast of the ceremonies at noon when Secretary of War Stimson draws the first draft number.

Just prior to the drawing from the historic fish bowl used for the 1917 World war draft, President Roosevelt will speak briefly explaining how the lottery operates and giving reasons for the first peace-time conscription in history.

WABC-CBS, both NBC networks, and MBS will pick up the ceremonies beginning at noon CBS plans in addition several impromptu programs throughout the day to keep its coast-to-coast audience in touch with conscription news. It will feature interviews with men whose numbers have been drawn.

Song Secret Listed

Did you ever wonder what prompted the writing of that plaintive "Prisoner's Song"? The man who knows the answer, the author of the tune, will tell the story behind the song as a guest on the WABC-CBS airing of "We, the People" at 9.

Alexander Woolcott fans who had been looking forward to his "Historical Portrait" of Civil war days on the Cavalcade of America Wednesday night will be disappointed. In order to prepare special music for the WEAF-NBC 7:30 show it was necessary to postpone it indefinitely. Instead the Cavalcade players will present "Red Death," the story of Dr. Joseph Goldberger's fight against pellagra.

Laura Wheeler Designs Slippers In Three Sizes for the Kiddies

Twenty minutes, what should I say to him when the time is up?

A. Say, "The time is up." No more. No sense in asking him to promise not to repeat the offense.

lest you practice him in lying. Nor to remind him of why he was punished. Better not punish a child at all if it is not very clear to him.

Q. Would you recommend "expression" lessons and dancing lessons for the timid, non-social child?

A. Not as a rule; often they do more harm to him than good, unless they put the emphasis on group activities. Saying pieces and solo dancing, while they afford means of exploiting the young child and showing him off before adults, usually renders him less acceptable to other children his age. Let him learn to excel at having fun with them.

Q. Suppose the child of one or two is slow at learning to chew?

A. Gradually encourage him to chew zweibach, crust or toast. Let the mother of the teething baby provide him with hard, safe objects to chew on such as ivory ring, arrow root.

Q. What of birthday parties for children under teen age when gifts are brought along?

A. Nearly always bad for personality and character. Wise parents announce to the parents of the children invited to the party "No gifts are to be brought, please."

What the New Deal Has Done for Cumberland

AS this newspaper has heretofore pointed out, many of the workers of Cumberland have been more fortunate than those of thousands of other communities throughout the land with regard to employment. Yet here, as elsewhere, there have been those without jobs, and we have had relief rolls and still have them.

But, it is of interest to reflect upon what Cumberland and its vicinity might have had in the way of employment had it not been for the restrictive influences of the New Deal. That, indeed, is something to think through.

Since the New Deal administration at Washington has been in control during the last seven and a half years, one can point out but little, if any, money that has been invested in Cumberland and Allegany county in any industry that gives a man or a woman a job, with the single exception of the Celanese plant.

Not only has but little or no money been invested, but many industries employing hundreds of men have either closed down or have been unable to carry on business effectively during the period mentioned.

For instance, within the last seven years, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company went through bankruptcy. It is now owned by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. At the beginning of the Roosevelt administration, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employed more than 1,800 men; now there are about 850 employed in addition to the office staff.

As late as two years ago, the tannery of the United States Leather Company, which employed about 100 men, closed down after continuous operation of 100 years.

The tin plate mill, which years back employed as many as 1,100 workers, was forced to suspend its operations. It was taken over the last four years two efforts have been made to resume operations at an expense to the company of approximately $400,000. This industry with a fair chance to do business might today be employing many hundreds of highly paid skilled workmen.

Foote's Dye Works, which prior to the present administration at Washington employed upward of 600 men and women, closed down through bankruptcy and will never reopen.

Cumberland has lost two glass factories during the last seven and a half years that employed several hundred highly skilled workmen at high wages.

Seven and a half years ago, when the New Deal took charge of things, Cumberland had two busy and prosperous silk mills, which employed several hundred workers. They, too, have gone.

The back shop of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, equipped to employ 1,000 or more skilled workmen, have never been fully manned and the shops have been able to work only at a part of their capacity intermittently.

The R. D. Johnson Milling Company, in business here for more than seventy years and formerly employing some sixty workers, is now in bankruptcy.

A number of other smaller concerns, which should be doing business today, have gone into bankruptcy or receiverships.

It is well known to the citizens of Cumberland that at the time the Celanese Corporation of America began operations here, the prospects were that its plant would be the largest industry in Maryland, with employees numbering 20,000 or more.

This would probably be so today were it not for the fact that the corporation was discouraged from enlarging its plant in Allegany county and has actually built what may be a duplicate plant in Virginia.

It is not unreasonable to say that the present Celanese industry, from the economic viewpoint of the citizens of Allegany county, has been the only industry aside from the railroads and a few small plants, that has saved Cumberland and Allegany county from the same kind of business and economic disaster that thousands of other cities and towns throughout the country have experienced. The Celanese plant has been able to continue only because it makes a product that it principally demanded for women's wear and is used almost regardless of the financial condition of the people.

People of Cumberland and Allegany county—workers, business men, professional men and all—would do well to reflect upon what the prosperity of the city and county might have been, instead of the sorry record here indicated, with a single exception, had the community not been subjected to the failures and losses resulting from the subversive philosophy and destructive influence of the New Deal.

Silly Effort To Prove Non-existent Prosperity

ONE of the feeblest things the third term candidate has yet done was to attempt a showing that the country is now prosperous by measuring conditions from the bottom of the depression. Any school child can understand that you could measure anything at any time from that abyss and obtain a plus sign.

Mr. Willkie, however, looked at the measurement from a common sense viewpoint, in ascertaining this puerile effort by the third term candidate to excuse the failures and losses resulting from the subversive philosophy and destructive influence of the New Deal.

The only fair method of measuring would be that of comparing the record of the seven New Deal years with the seven years preceding that period, and the seven preceding years included three years of the worst depression the country has ever known. By what other yardstick should it be measured?

That comparison shows that the national income under the administration of the third term candidate is down eleven per cent; that industrial production is down five per cent; that construction contracts are down fifty per cent; that farm income, including government payments, are down twenty per cent; that industrial wages and salaries are down twenty-one per cent; that dividends are down thirty-two per cent, and that new corporate capital used to expand industrial plants and provide jobs is down eighty-four per cent.

As Mr. Willkie says, the third term candidate cannot squirm out of that record even by using partial facts and incomplete comparisons. In short, the record of his failure is written in the relief rolls and nothing can cover the tragic fact that today more than nine million men are out of jobs.

No Deals Made, Mr. Willkie Says

LET nobody be taken in by the sly whisperings that are being spread around by the New Deal propagandists that Mr. Willkie has made this deal or that in reward for pledges of support by groups or leaders.

Mr. Willkie made this plain in the course of his address at Jamaica, N. Y., the other day.

"If you elect me president of the United States," Willkie said, "we will call to service the ablest men that can be found. This can be done because we know who the ablest men are, and have given no pledges anywhere to anybody for political purposes" (The italics are the News's).

"We will have no political puppets about," Willkie continued. "We will pick men to represent labor who come from the ranks and who know labor's needs. We will pick men to represent agriculture who are real farmers and who know the farmer's needs. We will pick men who know industry, and know finance, and men who are familiar with our political problems."

"And we don't want an attorney general to lisp a following acquiescence in a fine-spun legal way. We want an attorney general who will render sound opinions on the constitution and the laws of the land as they are, whether or not they serve my ends."

All these men will have different specialties and different interests. But they will have one common goal. They will marshal all their knowledge and skill and energy and all their devotion to help get America back into production."

Reassuring words are these, indeed—more so by reason of the fact that Mr. Willkie has already given ample indication that he is absolutely honest and means just what he says.

Strikes Too Numerous Under the New Deal

THIS NEWSPAPER has been saying much about industrial peace because it believes that it is a goal thousands of industrial workers in Cumberland and its vicinity devoutly want.

There is no denying the unpleasant fact that labor and employers have been at war the last several years, and many are of the opinion that much of the warfare could have been avoided.

At any rate, the record of strikes shows an appalling number under the New Deal. Wendell Willkie has called attention to this record in telling his plans for bringing about recovery through increased industrial production, industrial stabilization and industrial peace.

"Labor and employers," said Willkie, "have been at strife."

In the seven years before the New Deal there were an average of 796 strikes a year. In the seven years of the New Deal, there were 2,552 strikes a year. This is an increase of 200 per cent.

It is the firm belief of the supporters of Mr. Willkie that this distressing number of strikes can be materially reduced under a policy looking to industrial peace and the policies he will pursue if elected president. Let those hereabout, therefore, who seek peace in industry, lend their efforts to that end by voting for Mr. Willkie.

A Forest at Your Command

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I had a friend who was big. Physically big. Big in his anger. Big in his love. Big in his understanding of life. Whatever he did, he did with all his heart. He hated all little ways of doing things. . . . And many a time I heard him quote from Robert Ingersoll:

"If you're going to spend a dollar, spend it! Spend it as though it were a withered leaf and you had a whole forest at your command!"

My friend told me that many years ago he was in a bar with a very rich man. My friend was buying a drink for the two of them. He took half a dollar from his pocket and tossed it onto the mahogany. The rich man said: "Do you know, I'd be willing to give half of all I possess if I could do that, if I could toss a coin on the bar as negligently as you did. I've tried to do it many a time, but I CAN'T. I take a 50-cent piece from my pocket and push it cautiously toward the man I'm paying. And anybody can see how much it hurts me to do it!"

That rich man went on to say that all he had was money, more money than he needed, more than he could ever spend on himself and he frequently felt a deep impulse to help someone less fortunate with his money. But he couldn't do it.

When he wanted to put his hand into his pocket or use that right hand to make out a check, the muscles wouldn't work. . . . And even when he did make a gift he always found himself tagging acrimonious advice onto it, and dulling the pleasure of the receiver with empty warning and grumpy criticism. . . . He was aware that people disliked him and he was also aware that he could change that dislike to gratitude by changing his own nature a little. But he couldn't do it, and more and more he was coming to think of himself as a failure.

My big friend who used to quote Ingersoll on the subject of the withered leaf never had any wealth. In the nature of things he was no great saver, nor ever a man to cringe before the grim possibilities of the future. He spent many a dollar as though it were a withered leaf. He praised many a man and lifted many a tearful feature into self-respect. And when he died the leaves in his great forest of kindness were undiminished—and no one remembers the name of his pathetic rich friend, but thousands still are rich in their remembrance of my brave, good friend.

Politics in Army Is Condemned By Gen. Johnson

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—Col. Benjamin O. Davis (colored) just appointed brigadier general is a fine man. He has won the respect of his fellow officers by forty-two years of service in a most difficult situation. One of the greatest of Negro Americans, Col. Charles Young, once said to me:

"I wanted complete revenge on a super-enemy, I wouldn't send him to Hell. I would make him a Negro officer in a white army." Col. Young himself stood that so well, that even young southern white officers felt privileged to serve in his command. He was one of the ablest and most cultured officers of his time.

This column has no racial or religious prejudices. It has frequently insisted on recognition without discrimination, of Negro talents in every calling. But the appointment of Gen. Davis is terrible, not because he is a Negro, but because it is rank discrimination against his brother officers, ruinous to the army, and a second great step in the destruction of morale and the success of the draft. The appointment of Elliott Roosevelt was the first.

Practice Abandoned

Colonel Davis has only one year left to serve. Formerly it was a practice to appoint old colonels to be generals on the eve of their compulsory retirement at 54. For years this practice has been abandoned in the public interest. Unless a man has at least four years to serve he gets no stars. Most recent elevations to general rank have been of men about 38.

As a result, some of the brightest and ablest officers in the army have been frustrated and retired because they had less than four years to serve. This rule was grossly violated to their great surprise in the case of General Davis. If it is said that it was done simply because he deserved it, then why was it not done four years ago? Then it could have meant something to Gen. Davis. Now, since he can only serve one year, it is to him an empty gesture, and to the army complete disruption.

Strictly on Merit

Recently, promotion to the grade of general has been made strictly on relative merit as disclosed by the officer's whole record of rated efficiency in twenty-five or more years of service. Gen. Davis is an excellent man, but there are literally scores of officers in the aggregate groups from which generals are made whose records rate much higher.

Finally, Gen. Davis, who is not a cavalryman, is to command a cavalry brigade, two Negro regular regiments of which all or nearly all the officers are white, from the grade of colonel down. That just doesn't work. I say that as a matter of strict hard fact, not prejudice. Col. Young's case was a miraculous exception. General Davis is not Colonel Young. It would shatter the spirit of those regiments.

Suggestion Opposed

It has been suggested that, to avoid this result, all the white officers could be transferred out. Negro officers in the reserve corps would be called to active duty and put in command of these regular regiments, squadrons and troops.

To anybody who knows the army, that is a shocking suggestion. In the first place, except in close association with professionals run of mill officers are utterly incompetent to command regular troops. Such a move would simply write two regiments off the roster, so far as I am concerned. In the second place, trained Negro troops are peers of the best soldiers on earth when commanded by white officers. As our whole experience shows, for some reason I leave to others to explain, they don't seem to like to serve under Negro officers and under such conditions they have

HUNTING ON THE SLOUGH OF DESPOND--OR--BY GOLLY HE FINALLY GOT ONE

Noted Author Says Wendell Willkie Is Ideal Man To Represent the People

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON

Incredible as it may seem, I have heard several persons remark, that while they would like a change, they object to Mr. Willkie as he lacks polish, is a rough and ready speaker, and would lower the country's prestige if representing it in the White House.

Well—we have had a perfect gentlemen in the White House for eight years, and look where we are! We have listened to a cultured, persuasive, even seductive voice on the radio innumerable times—too long a time—and I fancy I am not the only one in American millions who would welcome an honest, American voice for a change. The French politician Herriot visited Washington some years ago and when he returned told the French people that President Roosevelt was sedulous. So he is and that highly cultivated gift has played a large part in our present predicament.

I was born into a southern family that automatically voted for any democratic candidate, and I voted the democratic ticket myself until the last election. Then I concluded I had enough of democrats, and voted for Landon, although with misgivings and no enthusiasm.

It is an enormous factor in his favor that he has done so many kinds of work in so many parts of America. He insists on telling every farm audience he addresses that he is not and never was a farmer. But he did in his youth sweat with threshing crews on a combine from Oklahoma northward and he knows, as no theorist can possibly know, how hard is the physical labor that the farmer faces. Of course, he sold newspapers as a boy, and, for a while, he drove a bakery wagon. He worked in a steel mill in Indiana, in a sugar refinery in Puerto Rico. He has done odd jobs in Montana, Wyoming and California. It would be hard to name a type of industry in which he has not labored with his hands to earn a living.

When he became an employer of men he understood their point of view as few proprietors ever can. His support of labor's place in the sun is not philosophical or theoretical. It is a basic part of his most convictions, resting upon his own first-hand knowledge of what hours and wages and conditions really mean in a laborer's life.

There has probably never been an American President who had touched life at so many points as has Mr. Willkie. His equipment for sitting around a table and talking heart to heart with wage earners, the salaried groups and business men, with equal appreciation of all their problems, it would be difficult to match. The country is singularly fortunate in its hour of division and bitterness to have such a comprehending, all-around American available for the task of restoring unity.

To see Mr. Willkie is to feel this breadth of experience, this generosity of outlook. We hazard the guess that it is precisely this clear-eyed, good-natured understanding and this ideal of a united nation, embodied in his stalwart figure and friendly face, which have swept him to triumph wherever he has gone.

His foreign policy is sound.

His integrity has never been questioned. He is a gentleman in the great American tradition, for he is sincere, honorable, courageous, genial, considerate, and wholly unpretentious.

No man that we know of could so magnificently represent all of us in the White House as Wendell Willkie.

He is in the highest sense, representative of the great American middle class, and the middle class is the backbone of any country.

He is prejudiced neither against Capital nor against Labor, and would give both a square deal.

He puts what he has to say in plain, unelusive English, no frills, no half-truths. Who cares whether he is "elegant" or not?

Transfer Company Manager Denies Union Charges

Bennett Says He Has Not Refused To Bargain with Local 453

Frank Bennett, manager of the Bennett Transfer Company, last night emphatically denied charges of refusing to bargain and intimidation filed yesterday with the National Labor Relations Board by G. E. Stutzman, business agent of Local No. 453, Teamsters and Chauffeurs union.

"We have not refused to bargain collectively," Bennett declared last night in charging that Stutzman has failed to keep the appointments made with the company.

Says Charge untrue

Bennett declared that the charge of intimidation was untrue, said that in the past only three of twenty-five "movers in our craft" have belonged to the union. As far as he knows, the other twenty-two have not even been approached regarding joining a union, the manager said.

Bennett stated that after the trouble started Sept. 18, his firm agreed to sign a 30-day or 60-day contract giving the union time to approach the non-union men in their craft. The union refused to do this, he said.

Losing Valuable Business

Bennett declared that while the company likes the set-up with the union it has lost valuable business which makes it impossible for them to sign what the firm regards as an unreasonable contract.

In filing charges with the board, Stutzman also charged the Lear and Oliver Ice Cream Company of Stutzman said a conciliator from the United States Department of Labor was here last week and is scheduled to return tomorrow.

Order numbers for the first list of draftees under the Selective Service Act will be drawn in Washington, D. C., today. Naturally Allegany county men who registered Oct. 16 will be anxious to know whether their number was drawn. They will also be interested in knowing the physical standards for men to be drafted into the army, as published last week. Here they are:

HEIGHT—Sixty inches minimum and seventy-eight inches maximum.

WEIGHT—105 pounds minimum (those whose weight is so great as to interfere with training will not be accepted).

EYESIGHT—Normal vision or a minimum sharpness of 20-100 in each eye, which can be corrected with glasses to 20-40; the twenty represents the distance of twenty feet which a patient stands away from a test chart and the forty represents the size of the type on the lowest line of the chart which he can read since 20-20 is normal vision, 20-40 is roughly half of normal.

HEARING—Normal hearing, the ability to hear a low conversational voice at twenty feet with each ear separately, or minimum hearing in each ear of 10-20 (which means ability to hear at ten feet the conversational voice which a normal ear can hear at twenty feet).

DISEASES—Mild cases of many diseases will be overlooked, but those with such disease as cancer, active tuberculosis, acute rheumatic fever, osteomyelitis, chronic arthritis and late syphilis will be rejected. Every man examined for possible army service will be given a blood test for syphilis.

TEETH—A minimum of three chewing teeth above and three below, meeting each other, and three cutting teeth above and three below, also meeting. Teeth which have been or can be easily restored will count, as well as bridgework.

FEET and HANDS—Some defects are permissible, such as an absent left thumb, loss of two fingers of either hand except where the two are the right index and middle finger, a slight clubfoot, web fingers and toes unless severe, and absence of one or two small toes if the foot otherwise is good.

Two Cumberland Nurses Called into Service

Miss Charlotte Smith, 115 Bellevue street, and Miss Regina Wallace, 529 Fayette street, have been called into service under the national defense program. They have been instructed to report as soon as possible to Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Miss Smith is a graduate of Allegany hospital, class of 1929 and Miss Wallace is a graduate of Allegany hospital, class of 1935.

They are the first Cumberland nurses to have been called.

Townsend Club Will Meet Wednesday

Townsend Club No. 2 will hold its regular meeting in the I.O.O.F. building, on Virginia avenue tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock instead of Thursday as originally planned.

New Deal

This is the road that the New Deal has paved for you during the past eight years. And where is it going to lead you? I don't know—I only wish that I could foresee its ultimate destination. It certainly won't lead you to a real job, nor will it bring you to the success and prosperity you desire and deserve.

"Perhaps many of you have never had a job—even the kind the New Deal creates for you—and this is quite probable, for one-third of all this country's unemployed are between the ages of sixteen and twenty-five. What have you gotten from the New Deal? Eight years of promises—nothing more. Are you going to be satisfied with four more years of unfulfilled promises? No, I don't think that you will be."

"The youth of America are being tricked by the New Deal. They inherit a forty-five billion dollar debt. Of course, if they pay at the rate of one hundred million dollars a year they can pay it off in 450 years. The New Deal's methods of keeping faith with these young people is to treat them as problem children whose only hope is a government handout."

"When the present administration took office in 1932, there were more than nine million unemployed. Today, after the New Deal has spent sixty billion dollars of your money, there are still more than nine million unemployed. These are facts and they cannot be denied."

Constantly Changes Rules

"And how is the New Deal responsible for this intolerable situation? In a radio address last week, Wendell L. Willkie ably answered this question as follows:

"The answer lies in the obstacles that the New Deal has placed in the way of creating jobs. The New Deal has been so bent on cracking down on businessmen that it has not given the man opportunity to expand plants, and to create the new enterprises which are the best means of providing jobs. Business and the expansion of business, depend on some stability of the rules of the game. The New Deal has been constantly changing rules."

"Let me give you a simple illustration; suppose you wanted to build a filling station on a highway. You would pick out a good site on the present road, lay out your money for the building, and then open up for business. Then suppose the road commissioner decided to shut off that road and build a new highway just when you had your filling station built. If you had any money left, you might buy a site on the new route. And then, suppose the road commissioner changed his mind again and decided that the highway was going to follow still another route."

"About that time you'd say 'I had better get out of the filling station business until we get a new road commissioner.'

The New Deal has been just like that road commissioner. There is hardly a day that some New Deal bureaucrat doesn't hand down some new rule or regulation which changes the road that business must travel. The system of taxation has been unsatisfactory, ill-considered and paralyzing. And, to make matters worse, every year some change has been made in the law which alters the rules which business must follow."

"I assure you that so long as the New Deal is in power there will be no expansion of peacetime enterprise and no reproduction in the rolls of the unemployment. Eight years of the New Deal has proved that, up to the hilt."

"Let us see what Mr. Willkie proposes to do about unemployment. First, he would remove the straight-jacket that the New Deal has placed on all business. Then by stimulating confidence in the future, he would encourage business to expand, to create new products, to find new markets. He would boom work in new fields—television, air-conditioning, low priced airplanes, streamlined houses, furniture, etc."

"Idle money means idle men; but when business puts money to work, that also puts men to work."

Youth Wants to Work

American youth should not be regarded as a surplus to be plowed under—into the muck of Fascist or Communist doctrine. Young America wants a government that will, with their help, clear the road to productive opportunity for every American. Wendell Willkie offers them the chance—and he asks their help, their tell and their sacrifice to get America back on the broad, strong road of increased production and jobs for all. This is not an easy charge. It means hard work for all of us. It seems a return to the American proposition that if you want to get something done, you pitch in and do it."

"Youth has all the qualities we need for this job. Youth is ambitious and adventurous. Youth is impatient of delay. Youth is jealous of its rights—yes, and of other people's rights. It loves to be busy—it seeks activity."

"More than anything in the world today, the American people desire peace. The young men who will soon be called to serve in the army desire peace. Yet there is one way, and only one way, by which we can have peace, and that is to become strong. We must become strong not alone in arms, but in our lives and in our work. We must become strong in the arts of peace—the arts of industry and the pursuit of happiness. These are the arts of free men. They become strong in them, we must be free."

"Therefore call upon you, young men and women of America, to stop and think. This is your job. It cannot be done without you. You must be part of it. Join Wendell L. Willkie, join him in our stand for freedom. In that stand, in that alone, lies your hope for the peace, prosperity and happiness you so ardently desire."

Civic Group To Vote Today on Air Corps School

Changes Have Been Made in Requirements for Training Pilots

Acquainted with the new requirements for a Civilian Pilot Air Corps training school in Cumberland, the executive committee of the chamber of commerce today will make up its mind whether to give Washington a "yes" or "no" answer on the proposal.

Chief change noted in the setup compared to the old requirements is the fact that applicants who qualify must pledge themselves to be available for flight training in either the navy or army upon successfully completing the school's ground and flight course.

Another change is the fact that an initial fee of $10 will be charged along with additional expenses including probably $6 for medical examinations, $9 for insurance and $2 for text books.

H. W. Smith, chamber secretary, would not predict yesterday what decision the board would make today. While the chamber favored a school in Cumberland prior to the time the new regulations went into effect, it is known that some of the members are not too keen for the pledge applicants are now being called upon to make.

Android Is Fined $25 on a Reckless Driving Charge

Harry Android, 25, of Erie Hill, Pa., was fined $25 and costs yesterday in trial magistrate's court on a charge of reckless driving.

Android was driving the car of William Hoover, of Windber, Pa., when the machine "ran wild" and crashed into the display window of the Dingle Drug Store, 756 Greene street, early Sunday morning.

Ten persons in the car were uninjured, but the store was damaged several hundred dollars.

The crash occurred immediately after the car had sidewise a car driven by Harry Bramble, of Valley Road, which was traveling in the opposite direction. Occupants of Bramble's car were not injured.

Hoover, the owner of the car was held in the city jail for the states attorney's office. Police said he had engaged an attorney and would seek a writ of habeas to secure his release.

Masonic Dramatic Club To Present Play Here

A Rose Upon the Altar by Carl H. Clancy, executive secretary Masonic Service Association, is the title of a play the Masonic Dramatic Club will present tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in the Masonic Temple.

The play consists of two acts and an interlude. The play is for Masons only.

cast by Station WTBO. Wilson said an attempt is also being made to have the local station broadcast Willkie's address from Baltimore tomorrow night. This plan has not been ratified as yet, however.

However, another broadcast that is expected to attract considerable attention has been arranged for the Republican chairman said last night. Through the courtesy of the Willie McNaught Club of the District of Columbia, a rebroadcast of the address made by John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, last Friday night, will be transmitted by Station WTBO, Thursday, Oct. 31, between 5 and 5:30 o'clock.

Republicans Report Gains

Republican workers who met at G. O. P. Headquarters, Baltimore street, last night reported substantial gains for the ticket throughout the county.

"Most reassuring reports were made by all committeemen," Wilson said. "They gave us all confidence and indicate that Wendell L. Willkie and the entire Republican ticket will overwhelmingly carry Allegany county on election day."

in order to learn when the questionnaire is being mailed to you.

Questionnaire By Mail

4. You will get your questionnaire in the mail. When you receive it fill in all the desired information and return it to the local board within five days.

5. You will then receive a letter from the local board notifying you of your classification.

6. If you are placed in a classification that is to enter training and not deferred you will receive another letter telling you when and where to report for a physical examination.

7. Your next letter will tell you the results of your physical examination.

8. If you passed the physical examination, your next notification will be to report for induction into training. This notice will tell you where to report.

oaks still cling to their dull red foliage—determined to be the last, as usual, to go home from nature's annual costume ball.

Heart of Oak Country

The sturdy oak is Western Maryland's particular tree, Buck says. This is the heart of the oak country. Red oak, pin oak, scarlet oak, black oak, Southern red oak, blackjack oak, white oak, bur oak and chestnut oak—Western Maryland has them all, the forester contends.

And each year when this sector's great forested area puts on its blindingly beautiful costume ball, the oak always stays at the party the longest, is always the last to leave. They generally stick to one color, the deep, dull red, but the oaks can "take it" and never go home and take off their costume until late.

Nots so the maples, always the belles at the annual party. It is the maples that give the costume ball its riotous colors. The sugar maple, for example, always comes to the party in a dress of magic that, like a sunset, is never quite the same each time one looks at it. Brilliant pinks, reds, scarlets and yellows intermingled with all the shades of green—that's what the sugar maple prefer in the costume line.

But the maples have their brief hour and then fold up. About halfway through the party, the more conservatively dressed trees look around and discover that their brilliant companions of a short time ago have discarded all their pretty colors and suddenly become drab and old.

After this sad event, it is the birches and the poplars that become the glamor girls of the party, the birches featuring yellows mixed with rich reds, the poplars in delicate yellowish tones comparable to a Van Gogh sunset.

But before very long they too of the party and go away. Then all that remains are the oaks and one other group. This last group, of course, consists of the evergreens. Some think they are the most beautiful of all. They are always the same, season in and season out, but most beautiful of all when seen as lonely sentinels towering over blankets of snow which also clings to their sturdy branches.

Where is the best spot in all Western Maryland to get the fullest, richest colors of autumn's annual party?

Likes Swallow Falls

Buck hesitated here. Opinions differ. But one of the most beautiful spots in the entire section, he thinks, is at Swallow Falls—the last remaining vestige of the coniferous forest land.

You see much of the spruce, hemlock and pine in Western Maryland has known the shrill scream of the sawmill. But at Swallow Falls there is a beautiful grove which Buck calls "the last stand" of the old white pine and hemlock trees. When it comes to autumn spectacles, Buck prefers the more riotous maples, birches, red and white oak and others mixed with the more sober, steadier hues of the evergreens. It makes the picture perfect, he thinks.

However, the question of most beautiful vistas is purely a matter of opinion. All Western Maryland is beautiful in the fall. The drive from Route 219 down Bear Creek to Friendsville, for example, takes the motorist into a deep valley and is timbered all the way.

The drive out the Meadow mountain road through the Savage River State Forest takes the motorist past the towering white pine stand at New Germany, the larger hardwoods, through sugar groves, past clusters of rhododendrons and wild honeysuckle and further out, past the oaks.

Some of the trees in Western Maryland according to Buck are between 350 and 400 years old, some older. The forester feels that if all people could understand the dignity of a tree that was living when Henry Hudson sailed up the Hudson, people would be more cautious with their matches and their fires.

Trees like these should be preserved, he thinks.

Nine Musical Outfits Entered in Hallowe'en Parade Here Thursday

Nine musical organizations, six volunteer fire companies and five uniform rank fraternal organizations will participate in the Hallowe'en parade which will be held here Thursday night, it was announced yesterday by Thomas F. Conlon, parade chairman.

The parade will start in South Cumberland at 7:30 o'clock.

Musical organizations entered are the Kelly-Mansfield Post, American Legion drum and bugle corps, of Piedmont, W. Va.; Windber, Pa., American Legion drum and bugle corps; Fort Hill high school band, Allegany high school band, Barton city band, Lonaconing city band, Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion band, Fort Cumberland Post Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps; and Henry Hart Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars drum and bugle corps.

Fire companies listed are Tri-Towns, Deep Creek, Westernport, LaVale, Cresaptown and Midland.

Uniformed fraternal organizations entered are Piedmont Knights of Pythias, Knights of Malta, Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Woodmen of the World.

Kline's Ponies also will take part in the parade, Conlon announced.

The parade committee will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce office to complete plans for Thursday's big celebration.

Payroll Records Held Open for Government

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Supreme Court took action today that was interpreted by the federal Wage-Hour Administrator as requiring all employers to produce payroll records upon the demand of the federal agency.

The court revised to review a decision by the Federal Circuit Court at Chicago which held that records may be requisitioned even though there is no reasonable cause to believe that the wage-hour act is being violated.

Commenting on the decision, Col. Philip B. Fleming, the wage-hour administrator, asserted in a statement that there could now be "no excuse for any employer's refusing access" to such data.

Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., Chicago mail order house, had challenged the administrator's right to examine records concerning 2,000 employees at the Kansas City, Mo., branch store.

The firm contended the administrator was attempting an unreasonable "search and seizure" prohibited by the constitution. The wage-hour legislation fixes minimum pay and maximum work week for employees. Litigation intended to test the law's constitutionality is pending before the court and will be argued in a few weeks.

Russian Neutrality May Be Maintained

MOSCOW, Oct. 28 (AP)—The Soviet government watched closely the Italian attack on Greece today and the public heard all about it from the Moscow radio but there was no indication of the Kremlin's reaction.

Without comment, the radio devoted virtually its entire program to the Balkan developments. These were based largely on American press accounts.

Foreign observers expressed the belief the Italo-Greek conflict would fail to alter immediately the Russian neutrality policy.

DeCorrevon's Pass Record--Seven of 10

EVANSTON, Oct. 28—Why Northwestern moaned because a sprained ankle kept Bill deCorrevon out of the Indiana game is made clear by a tabulation of the Chicago boy's passing. In three games, the Austin High School product was called on 10 pass plays. Seven times he completed passes, once Ike Kepford dropped a long one and on the other two occasions deCorrevon kept the ball and ran with it for a total of 58 yards.

SYNOPSIS

READ THIS FIRST:
AFTER a long and arduous attempt to make her way to the top, KIT REILLY, young singer of sweet sounds, is given a chance for a radio audition in the Semibre contest by PLAN L.E. MAZE, outstanding young radio sports announcer. Contest offers a prize of $5,000 and a one year contract to appear in the success of NANA HARRIS, the stage actress who is retiring. While Kit is learning from her loyal friend and partner, PLAN L.E. MAZE, that they will go their song and dance act at an athletic club, Kit's mother, Mrs. L.E. Maze, and one of the members of the Semibre judges, visits Nana.

CHAPTER TEN

HOWARD BLACK said, "What am I supposed to say?" "I hoped you'd say that you perceive a great spiritual change in me," answered Nana Harris. "That would be from the results of the profound thinking I've been doing these last few days."

He inquired anxiously, "How do you feel, Nana? Any temperature?"

"How do I feel? Or what do I feel like? . . . Don't bother. Howard, I'll answer both. I feel healthy, happy and wise. I feel like a person instead of a personality and I like it. In fact, I feel like a rather nice person. A kind sort of comfortable person with a heart full of good thoughts. How do I look?"

"Snug and smart and well fed," he answered. "Like a nice, sleek black cat. And now that you've got that out of me, what's this nonsense about your quitting the air?"

"The really serious about it. I've got a lot of money and I can go on making it by making records. Maybe do a show next season. Take a trip to Europe. I want to stop the grind that a radio singer's life is. I want to quit having to please sponsors, taking a daily singing lesson, those deadly conferences with managers and accompanists and arrangers. I want to quit massages and diets and interviews. . . . Also, I have a hunch that quitting while the quitting's good if I tried. But anyway, there it is. What do you think now?"

"You're crazy, Nana. You're right at your peak."

"I know it," she said quietly. "Seven years to get there and one slip through carelessness, can finish it. That's radio."

Howard freshened his drink from the decanter. "I think you're right in a way. Some day I'm going to do a Vance Healey and quit this. He's on the wagon he tells me."

"That's good. Vance strikes me as one of those boys who drinks to forget something. He really doesn't like the taste of it and it does such things to him. When he's himself, he's fun and a swell kid. But when he drinks he thinks he's the lord of the universe. That's how he gets into those jams of his."

Speaking of jams, my thrush, this Semibre judging is my idea of a jam. How can a man be expected to sort out a voice after hearing a bunch of them for three-teen weeks, I ask you?"

"Ninety-one of them, darling! I ask YOU! Divided into soprano and alto."

"Instead of changing it, let's go back. I'll tell you what I'll do. Howard, I'll take all the responsibility off your shoulders for the Semibre judgments. You just watch my signals and I'll do the selecting."

"Oh, you will! How about the strong-minded madame?"

"I can talk her down any day," she retorted, getting her arms into her sable coat.

Minnie interrupted their discussion to announce dinner.

They'd finished their salad and cheese when Howard reverted to their original subject, saying, "This quitting talk, Nana . . . There's a great day coming for some girl to get her clutches around America's little listening ears. The crooner's day is waning and the gals get the next inning. This is no time for you to quit!"

Nana gave him a sad glance. "Sometimes I don't think you realize that some girl's whole future is at stake, Howard. But what are we going to do?"

To Make Talks

GRANTSVILLE, Oct. 28.—The high school auditorium has been chosen as the place of meeting for a political gathering Friday. Col. George Henderson, Cumberland attorney, is scheduled to make the principal address.

Walter W. Dawson, Oakland, and other prominent men of the country are to be here for the occasion. The meeting, which is called for 8 o'clock, is open to anyone interested.

Gnagay Rites Held

Funeral services for Jonas E. Gnagay, 90, were conducted yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. C. Beachy, by the Rev. Arthur Serogian, pastor of the Accident Church of the Brethren. Mrs. Serogian and Miss Ruth Marie Scroogen sang the hymns.

Six grandsons served as pallbearers: Wiley Gnagay, Washington, Pa.; Harold Stanton, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Norman Gnagay, St. Paul, Pa.; Walter Gnagay, Boynton; Charles Stanton and Raymond Loebel, Grantsville. Burial was in the Grantsville cemetery.

Mr. Gnagay, who was one of the early residents of Garrett county, died Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. A. Lininger, Waterloo, Iowa. A short service was held there before bringing the body to Grantsville. His son, A. B. Gnagay, Santa Fe, N. M., and daughter, Mrs. Robert Horne Broadhead, Wis., attended this service but were unable to come to Grantsville. The other ten of his twelve surviving children were here to attend the rites.

Among the relatives and friends who came from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer J. Gnagay, East Orange, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Stanton and Harold E. Stanton, Brooklyn, N. Y.; W. H. Gnagay, Dayton, O.; Mrs. Clyde Broadwater and Mrs. William Zook, Lanark, Ill.; C. J. Gnagay, Buffalo, N. Y.; Mrs. G. A. Lininger, Waterloo, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Parsons, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Harry G. Gnagay, Warren, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gnagay, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Gnagay and two children, Washington, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Gnagay, Archibron, O.; W. S. Livingood, Harrisburg; Mr. and Mrs. Markele Stanton, Westerville; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Alexander, LaVale; J. M. Gnagay, Meyersdale; Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Speicher, Accident; P. L. Livingood, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Gnagay, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Keim, Salisbury; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gnagay, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gnagay, Boynton; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gnagay and family, St. Paul.

Infant Dies

Shelby Jeanne Richter, six-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richter, died about 3 o'clock this morning at the home of her parents on Negro mountain. The child had been ill three days, and death was attributed to double pneumonia. Surviving, in addition to her parents, are two sisters, Elaine and Yvonne Richter. Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Richter was Miss Eleanor Younkin, of Grantsville.

Missionary Meeting

Approximately seventy members of missionary societies of the Somerset classis of the Evangelical and Reformed church were entertained by members of the Grantsville society at the annual fall institute here Saturday.

Miss Elizabeth Zimmerman, Somerset, Pa., president of the classis, presided over the meeting, which was an all-day affair. Mrs. Harry J. Bender was soloist at the morning session, and Miss Greta P. Hinckley, Dayton, O., national secretary of literature, delivered the address. Lunch was served by the Grantsville ladies at noon.

Short Wave Radio
Is Installed at Tygart River Dam

GRAFTON, W. Va., Oct. 28 (AP)—Officials at the Tygart Flood Control dam announced the installation of a short wave radio station for use during storm and flood periods in the event telephone wires fail.

Dam tenders said the station is the first of its kind to be installed in the state, and that they will be in a position to inform points along the Tygart Valley, Monongahela and Ohio rivers when flood is imminent.

The station will maintain a tie-up with Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Ky., and Huntington, with contact to be made through Pittsburgh, they said.

Advance information on water stages will be received via telephone from the Elkins weather bureau and stations on the watershed of the Tygart Valley river.

CADETS IN FLYING SCHOOLROOMVolunteer Firemen May Be Placed In Deferred Class for Draft*Only 'Active' Members Affected, Midland Company Is Advised

MIDLAND, Oct. 28.—In an open letter read last evening at its meeting, the Midland fire department was informed that members of volunteer fire companies in the United States may be considered in a deferred class under the conscription law. The communication was received from John McNulty, president of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association and read in part as follows:

"When the Selective Service bill became a law, I realized that it would seriously affect our organization, as most of our active firemen are of the draft age. Since that time I have been actively engaged contacting not only our local officials, but those in Washington as well, to try and do what I could to prevent this happening to us."

"I have now been assured that our active men will be placed in a deferred class if it is found that their services are needed by their local companies. The question will be asked: 'Who considered an active fireman?' I would say that an active fireman is one who answers the call to service whenever possible and one who has made a study of his job, either by active experience with his local company or by taking courses offered by the Fire Extension Service at the University of Detroit."

Miss Katheryn Leonard Shipley Is Bride of Edward W. Walker

Meyersdale Couple Wed in Beautiful Ceremony at Colonial Hotel

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Oct. 28.—In the main dining room of the Colonial hotel, decorated with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums, Miss Katheryn Leonard Shipley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fulton N. Shipley, became the wife of Edward Wilson Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Walker, of Summit township. The wedding service was read by the Rev. J. Luther Pranta, of Washington, D. C., a former pastor of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church, of which the bride and her parents have been life-long members.

The bride's gown was of ivory white faille, with sweetheart neck and long pointed sleeves. She wore an embroidered finger-tip veil, cascaded from a tulle pleated bonnet edged with seed pearls, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and a lace handkerchief, an heirloom, belonging to her aunt, Miss Belle Shipley.

The bride's sister, Miss Elizabeth Ann Shipley, who was maid of honor, wore a gown of rose taffeta, with basque waist and full skirt, and carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums tied with brown ribbon.

Glenn Walker, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Mollie Rae Walker, little niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl, and his twin nephews, Dave and Don Walker, were ribbon bearers.

The mother of the bride was attired in a black crepe gown with embroidered soldier blue and steel beads, and wore a corsage of yellow chrysanthemums. The bridegroom's mother wore a black crepe gown with a corsage of assorted chrysanthemums, while Mrs. Edward D. Leonard, grandmother of the bride, wore a black gown, with a corsage of gardenias.

The bride graduated from Meyersdale high school in the class of 1935, attended Temple university, Philadelphia, and graduated from Wittenberg college, Springfield, Ohio. Since her graduation, she had served as secretary in the office of her father, who is head of the Shipyly Hardware company.

The bridegroom also graduated from Meyersdale high school and attended West Virginia university at Morgantown.

Mrs. Norman Sander, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the piano, playing a fifteen-minute concert and the wedding march from the stereo system.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, there was a reception, after which the bride and groom left for an extended auto tour of the south and will be at home after December 1st at their home, "Cloverdale Farm," in Summit township, near Meyersdale.

Stocks Decline over Foreign News, But Losses Are Reduced at Close

Only a Few Issues Close Higher in Dull Trading

By FREDERICK GARDNER
NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (P)—The stock market stumbled over foreign news today but steadied in the closing hour.

After a downward drift during the greater part of the session, a little buying support came in at the last and initial losses running to a point or more were reduced. As a result of modest gains also was in evidence.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off 2 of a point at 44.8. Transfers amounted to 470,640 shares compared with 518,660 last Friday.

Market sentiment was chilled a bit, brokers said, by the extension of the European war to Greece and indications a shift in the campaign by the Axis powers.

An officially estimated jump in this week's steel mill operations to another new top since the American Iron & Steel Institute began publication of the figure aided earlier soft steel shares. U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic and Youngstown sheet ended only a trifle under water and Jones & Laughlin preferred held an advance of four points.

Improvement was retained by American Telephone, Goodyear, National Acme, Texas Corp., Phelps Dodge, International Harvester, Woolworth, American Can and Air Reduction.

On the outside were U. S. Rubber, Chrysler, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Anaconda, Kennecott, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Du Pont, Western Union, General Electric, Douglas Aircraft and Montgomery Ward.

Behind in the Curb were Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Jones & Laughlin, Bell Aircraft and International Petroleum. Minor plus signs were retained by American Cyanamid "B," Gulf Oil and Glen Aiden Coal. Volume here was around 97,000 shares.

Bonds Lower

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (P)—While the trend was generally lower in today's bond market, losses were mostly small and numerous firm spots were in evidence at the close.

Rails offered less resistance than other groups, indicating brokers said, that speculative holdings in these issues were being lightened in consequence of the involvement of Greece in the European war.

There was some shifting of maturities in the government list as dealers prepared for an expected offering from the treasury later this fall. Closing prices were mixed, up 14-32 of a point to down 5-32.

Sales of $4,234,575, par value, compared with $5,581,400 last Friday.

Oscar Vitt "Fired" as Cleveland Pilot

Closes Bizarre Chapter in Major Baseball Annals

Owners Bow to Protest of Players - Vitt Not Surprised

Plans To Retire Unless He Can Land Job at Good Salary

By LARRY HAUCK

CLEVELAND, Oct. 28 (P) — The Cleveland Indians closed one of the most bizarre chapters in baseball history today by "firing" Oscar Vitt, the manager whose ouster twelve players demanded in an unprecedented rebellion last June.

Even Vitt was not surprised.

Club President Alva Bradley read Vitt's request with the terse announcement:

"We have decided not to renew Oscar Vitt's contract."

At his Oakland, Calif., home, Vitt said:

"I can't exactly say that I am surprised. At no time were next year's plans discussed with me and I knew long before the close of the season that unless drastic changes were made it would be impossible for me to work under the present circumstances."

Well Satisfied

It doesn't look as though these changes are being made so I am just as well satisfied."

I made plenty of money for the Indians in the last three years and I have no regrets. Unless I get a job that will pay me well I presume old Os will just retire."

Whoever gets the job has my best wishes also my sympathy."

The club's decision opened wide the field of speculation over a 1941 pilot.

I am not certain now when a new manager will be selected," Bradley said after a directors meeting.

Loss Of Applicants

Bradley said he had a long list of applicants, but it was generally believed Bucky Harris, Washington pilot, was being given first consideration.

Luke Seidl, Cleveland coach; Roger Peckinpah, former Redskin manager, and Mickey Cochrane, former Detroit mentor, also have been mentioned frequently for the role of manager No. 15 in the Cleveland dynasty.

Vitt, who came here in 1938 after piloting Newark to the International League title, brought the Indians home second this year, won off game the pace of the champion Detroit Tigers. The club finished third in his first two seasons.

Pitcher Bob Feller, one of the protégés, commented at his home in Van Meter, Ia.

"I hope that everything will be for the best."

Ohio State Formally Protests on Snavely

Used Cylinder To Flash Signals To His Quarterback

Called Gross Violation of Official Grid Regulations

Exonerates Other Cornell Officials of Breach of Sportsmanship

By JOHN H. COLBURN
COLUMBUS, Oct. 28 (AP)—A little white cylinder today stirred up a formal protest that Cornell's Carl Snavely directed play on his football team from the bench against Ohio State Saturday.

Ohio State's athletic director, L. W. St. John, charged that Snavely's manipulations of the cylinder signalled the quarterback what plays to call as Cornell rolled over the Buckeyes 21-7 in their intersectional clash at Ithaca, N. Y.

The protest citing Snavely for "gross violation of the official football rules" and a "breach of sportsmanship" went to Asa S. Bushnell, executive director of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association, with a copy to James Lynch, Cornell's athletic administrator.

Snavely Sunday termed St. John's assertions "unwarranted and contrary to fact" and said that the complaint should have been made to game officials. St. John told reporters the officials had been asked to watch for signalling, but he observed that it was difficult for them to watch anything but the game.

St. John's protest expressed belief the alleged signalling was unknown to other Cornell athletic officials.

Not only was the signalling defeated, said St. John, "but as the game progressed we were enabled to forecast the play to be called by the manipulation of the cylinder in Coach Snavely's hand."

St. John expressed doubt, though, that the signalling had any "very direct bearing on the outcome" and praised Cornell as a "great team."

Bushnell, in a Princeton, N. J., hospital to have a broken arm reset, was unavailable for comment.

CORNELL COACH HIT

Carl Snavely

Carl Snavely, Cornell's football coach, comes in for scathing attack by the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, which included him in its attack on alleged sub-sidization in Ivy league football. The newspaper accused Snavely of doing much traveling around the country searching for talent. The Crimson called for Harvard to break off football relations with Cornell.

Ohio State now accuses Snavely of coaching from the sidelines last Saturday.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The old professor brushed the tacks from his chair and the cobwebs from his bow, but the cobwebs still were there when he turned to address his Monday morning class of football coaches.

Old Professor—I don't seem to find some schools I expected to find on this undefeated list, such as Fordham and Texas. Not that I give a hoot.

Dana Bible, Texas—Don't use that word. It reminds me too much of those Owls of Rice. They played exceptionally well and we didn't.

Jess Neely, Rice—My team made the best showing of the season.

Tom Lieb, Florida—How much it would cost to build a fence around the state. I wish those Florida boys, Bill Howling and Bust Warren, who scored Tennessee's touchdowns, had stayed home and gone to school. The Vols were too good.

Bob Neyland, Tennessee—Florida had a sturdy defense, a well-planned attack. We were awfully lucky to win.

Old Professor—What is wrong, Mr. Munger? Blue isn't becoming.

George Munger, Penn—I can't help it, professor, but I'm blue. That blue-shirted Harmon is every bit as good as they say.

Fritz Crisler, Michigan—We beat on kicking, the part of the game old-time Michigan teams used to win with. Tom Harmon certainly evened things up.

Old Professor—What comes to he, or is it him, who waits, Mr. Dawson?

Red Dawson, Tulane—A break. At long last we got one against North Carolina. We were mighty lucky. Sweet LaLanne and Paul Severin form a sweet passing combination for Carolina.

Bear Wolf, North Carolina—Our boys played their hearts out and deserved better luck. Tulane was alert and took advantage of the breaks.

Old Professor—Something, Mr. Larson?

Swede Larson, Navy—Yes sir, I'd like to say that Yale is very much of a football team and played a great game in losing to us. On our part, we have quite a few spots to iron out before we meet Penn.

Ducky Pond, Yale—We were simply overpowered by a great ball club.

Old Professor—Mr. Jones, is the coast clear?

Howard Jones, USC—if it isn't Stanford is cleaning it up pretty fast. It's a great team.

Clark Shaughnessy, Stanford—What fighters my boys are! I'm proud of them.

Old Professor—Come down off that chandelier, Mr. Strader.

Red Strader, St. Mary's—Can't help it. I just feel high. My boys outdid themselves against Fordham.

Jim Crowley, Fordham—The best team won.

Old Professor—Less hilarity, please. Something, Mr. Snavely?

Carl Snavely, Cornell—My boys played better against Ohio State than they did at Columbus last year.

Old Professor—I'm sorry Mr. Schmidt isn't present today, but our time is up anyway.

Now a resident of Lincoln, Mockett sees the Huskers play every fall.

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 28 (P)—Washington and Lee's battered Generals, feeling the shock of five consecutive major football contests, were given this afternoon off after viewing movies of the Virginia Tech game.

Coach Tex Tilson said practice would be resumed tomorrow for the West Virginia game at Charleston Saturday. V. P. I. whipped the favored Generals, 21-0, last week.

Series of Robberies in Cumberland Solved with Arrest of Four Youths

Maryland P-TA Congress Will Convene Nov. 7

Solution to a series of robberies that have been under investigation by county and city authorities for several months was announced last night by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris following the arrest and questioning yesterday of a quartet of Cumberland youths, all of whom confessed burglarizing local homes and business establishments.

Those arrested were Charles F. Stiner, high school boy, who admitted that he burglarized a North Mechanic street store and approximately a dozen homes and apartments on Washington, Bedford and Frederick streets, and Carl Schart; Donald William Kalbaugh and James Donald Kenney, who confessed that they were involved in other robberies that have been under investigation.

Stiner Burglarized Homes

Stiner, who officers said has been under suspicion for some time, told State's Attorney Harris that he had broken into the Wilson Hardware store, North Mechanic street, and took blackjacks, gun holsters and two revolvers.

He then startled the investigators by admitting that he had burglarized the homes of William M. Somervue, attorney, 110 Washington street; Walter L. Pierce, district manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, 700 Washington street; Howard M. Twigg, 154 Bedford street; Wagner Sheetz and Paul M. Wineow, 134 Bedford street; Howard Hetzel, 154 Frederick street; William E. Scotts, 125 Frederick street; the McGeady apartment, 105 Frederick street and two other apartments on Frederick street.

The state's attorney also said that Stiner admitted that he was accompanied by two others, namely, robbing Lancaster Jewelry shop, owned by Arthur C. Lancaster, on the second floor of 121 Baltimore street, and burglarizing of the Schwab Knitting factory, located in the old Habig Building, North Centre street. Kalbaugh and Schart also confessed that they were involved in these jobs.

Admit Keyser Robbery

Three of the four young men questioned in the state's attorney's office admitted that their burglarizing was carried across the state line into West Virginia. Schart and Kalbaugh told State's Attorney Harris that they broke into Naedle's Jewelry store, Keyser, W. Va., December 10, 1939, and took approximately twenty-eight watches, a number of rings, bracelets, miscellaneous jewelry and other supplies costing about $600.

James Donald Kenney was involved in this case as the driver of the car in which the youthful robbers were taken to the scene of the robbery, officers said. Kenney admitted that he parked his car on Main street and remained there while Schart and Kalbaugh pried

New Deal Treatment of American Youth Is Protested in Address

William H. Geppert Calls for Young Folks To Support Willkie

Declaring that the road which the youths of America are traveling under the New Deal will certainly not lead them to a real job, nor bring them the success and prosperity they desire, William H. Geppert, young Cumberland attorney, in a public address last night called upon the young men and women of America to stop and think, and vote for Wendell L. Willkie for president.

I have a picture in my mind tonight which I should like to describe to you," Geppert said. "It is a picture of American youth—a young man who for the past eight years has been trudging aimlessly along a road that seemingly had no end. He commenced his career with a NYA job. Later his youthful hopes and aspirations carried him into a CCC camp, and now he is on WPA. As he trudges down this endless road, one which he did not choose for himself, he suddenly stops and looks up. He has a puzzled and bewildered expression upon his face. He seems to be asking: 'Where do I go from here?' In his mind are dreams of getting married, having a baby, a radio, an automobile, or perhaps owning his own home. It suddenly dawns upon him that he can never achieve these things on WPA wages."

Won't Lead To Prosperity

"I am wondering how many of you who are listening tonight are struggling along this same road. Don't you think that its about time you were stopping and asking yourself, 'Where do I go from here?'

PANTOMIME AT PARTY—The Girl Scout Mother and Daughter banquet, held last night at Centre Street Methodist church, was followed by a five-episode pantomime to illustrate the effectiveness of Scouting in developing a future woman of good character. The scene above shows Winifred McCloskey cooking food over a camp fire and directly above Ann Troxell portrays a mother feeding her child. Showing how a Girl Scout today learns to cook and prepare food, and how, as the mother of tomorrow, she follows out the teachings of her youth. The little boy sitting on the stool is Ann's brother Robert.

Nice Declares Maryland GOP Is Now United

Tells Women Complete Unity Necessary To Insure Victory

Former Governor Harry W. Nice declared before the nineteenth annual convention of the Maryland Federation of Republican Women meeting in Baltimore yesterday that the Republican party is united in the State of Maryland.

The Republican nominee for the United States Senate spoke to more than 300 women and a few men who came from all sections of the state to attend the convention.

Repeal of the "declaration of intent act" and uniform registration were called for in resolutions passed at a business session.

It was stated that Maryland

16 Youths Depart To Join CCC Camp

Allegany Countians Join Salisbury, Company for Six Months

With Salisbury, Md., as their destination, sixteen CCC camp enrollees of Allegany county left yesterday at 12:30 p.m. by Western Maryland train to join Company 1318, Camp No. 12 of the Soil Conservation Service.

The county contingent in charge of George Yurkovic, leader of Meadow Mountain Camp S-68, of Garrett county, will travel to Baltimore over the Western Maryland and complete their journey from Baltimore to Salisbury on Pennsylvania railroad. They were scheduled to arrive at 2:37 o'clock this morning.

Lieut. Charles G. Brooke, Jr., of Baltimore, was the enrolling officer. He was assisted by Michael J. Duda, leader and John Merison and John W. Kiwalla, assistant leaders of Meadow Mountain camp.

Two youths were rejected because of inadequate vision and heart disease.

Those going to camp for a period of six months are Allen William Beeman, Lonaconing; Paul Brant, 89 Henderson avenue; Robert Lee Brown, 701 Baker street; Robert James Burley, Bedford road; Delbert Joseph Green, Lonaconing; Paul Johnson, Nikep; Robert Daley Judy, 947 Gay street; John Carter Lyonus, Route 1, Frostburg; Lloyd Roger Mauk, Route 3, Cumberland; James Alex McAlpine, Lonaconing; Robert Lynn Morris, 226 Glenn street; Glen Ritchie, Route 1, Frostburg; Jesse Harold Shadwell, 128 Humbird street; Albert Benjamin Shank, Cresaptown; Paul Day Vance, Flintstone, and John Evan Williams, Eckhart.

Homely Trust and Hard Work Are Stressed by Walter P. Johnson

'Pitched To Win' in Baseball, Doing Same Thing in Politics

GERMANTOWN, Md., Oct. 28 (AP)—He always "pitched to win"—and it's no different now when baseball's "Big Train" again is ready to chug toward Washington and the "Major League," if he gets the sign.

This time Walter Johnson—in the political "minors" as a Montgomery county commissioner—is trying to crash the big time as a United States representative on the Republican ticket.

It cost him fifty cents to win the race for commissioner. His major expenditure now is running against Officer William D. Byron, baseball talk at way-stations and farms in county campaigns.

For twenty-one years—until 1927—Johnson pitched for the Washington Senators, hurling a record of 113 shut-out games. Later he managed Newark in the International League, the Senators, and the Cleveland Indians.

He will tell an audience "there are many things to talk about," then stress homely "trust" and "hard work" as his campaign issues.

Johnson said he had to be persuaded to run for Congress, and denies "stories" that "I don't care whether I win. I never pitched a game in my life that I didn't want to win. Anyone who says I don't want to win the race for Congress isn't telling the truth."

He doesn't know "whether I'll make a good congressman." Some ballplayers have, he says, and "I'm going to do my best."

Johnson has a farm—and even fox-hounds—at Germantown and can farm problems. But mostly he simply swaps baseball tales with voters, and leaves political campaigning to county party leaders. The "big train" says he's never asked anyone to vote for him.

Order Numbers For Draftees To Be Drawn Today

Lottery Will Take Place in Washington Starting at Noon

Today is the day the numbers are drawn out of the pickle jar in Washington and hundreds of young men in Allegany county are wondering if their days of civilian life are numbered.

The truth is that most men between twenty-one and thirty-five in the county are still in the fog regarding just how they are to know if their number is drawn. This story will be an attempt to clarify this situation once and for all.

Draft registrants, who haven't already done so, should learn their serial numbers immediately. If they haven't read them in the newspapers they should go to their local draft boards and look them up.

If a registrant knows his serial number he will be able to learn his order number today.

Drawing in Washington

Officials in Washington will draw one number at a time out of the draft bowl. The first number that they draw will be given Order No. 1.

That is if 668 should be the first number, all persons with Serial No. 668 will get Order No. 1. All persons with Order No. 1 will be the first ones to be sent questionnaires, classified and if placed in Class IA inducted into the army.

The second number that is drawn out of the lottery will be Order No. 2. If the number drawn is 670, then all persons with Serial No. 670 will be sent Order No. 2.

Draft officials pointed out that not only the men with Order No. 1 will be in the first draft. The first draft in this state during November may take men with order numbers ranging from one to approximately twenty-five.

To Be Posted By Saturday

However, if you do not know your serial number, you will be able to find out your serial number by inquiring at the office of your local board in several days. All local draft boards will make up new lists. Those lists, arranged according to order numbers, will be posted in the board offices by Saturday.

Draft officers pointed out that the procedure to be followed is the same for both white and Negro races, although there will be separate quotas for the two races.

Hints To Registrants

To any registrant wanting to know how to keep themselves posted on all draft procedure, draft officers outlined the following program:

Following the banquet a varied program was presented.

The assemblage sang "America" and Mrs. Robert Henderson gave the invocation. Mrs. Julius E. Schindler welcomed the mothers and Girl Scouts with an appropriate speech.

SATURDAY Local draft boards will post lists showing the men to whom questionnaires have been mailed.

SATURDAY Local boards will post lists showing the men to whom questionnaires have been mailed.

SATURDAY Local draft boards will post lists showing the men to whom questionnaires have been mailed.

NOVEMBER 4—Men with Order No. 1 will begin receiving questionnaires. They must return questionnaires within five days.

NOVEMBER 11—Men who have returned questionnaires will begin receiving notifications by mail advising them of their classifications.

NOVEMBER 12—Men who have been notified of classification will begin receiving notices of when and where to report for physical examinations. A few days later they will receive notices of the board's decision on their physical standing.

Meanwhile, local boards will begin sending out questionnaires to men with Order No. 2, No. 3, etc., and the same procedure will be followed.

NOVEMBER 26—(Approximate)—Men first called will be ordered to report for induction

Scouting Emphasized

The value of Girl Scouting was emphasized by Mrs. Ronald Pitcher, in address telling of her observations of Scouting and its effect on girls of scouting age.

Three classes of Girl Scouts were represented in telling of "What Scouting Means to Me". Speaking for the Brownie Scouts, Molly Pitcher told of benefits she received. Nancy Williams gave her side of the story for the Intermediates and the Senior Scouts were represented by Jane McMannis.

The Helen Warling Martin publicity award was presented to Miss Myrtle Lee, leader of Troop 15, by Mrs. Frank U. Davis.

A pantomime entitled "The Girl of Today and the Woman of Tomorrow" was given in five episodes.

Sixteen girls of different troops participated. Miss Eleanor Kelly and Miss Catherine Smith gave the first episode; Miss Patricia Geatz and Miss Doris Moore enacted the

Kiwianians To Hear Dr. McMillan Speak

Local Club Will Nominate Directors at Regular Meeting Thursday

Dr. F. J. McMillan, director of the Baltimore City hospital, will speak on "Hospitalization" at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club, Thursday at 12:15 p.m., in the Central Y. M. C. A.

The business session will consist of nomination of directors to replace Robert S. Barnes, Dr. Charles L. Owens and Michael D. Reinhardt, whose terms expire this year.

Seventy-four members are eligible and each member must have ten or more endorsements before his name is placed on the ticket.

Holdover directors are Frank V. Carpenter, Fred G. Dodge, Roy C. Lottig and John F. Rodman, whose terms expire in 1941, and Jesse W. Holmes, Lloyd Rawlings, William M. Sonner and Harvey H. Weiss, who will serve as directors until 1942.

District Forester H. C. Buckingham Smokes Pipe and Talks of Trees

Tells Reporter Sturdy Oak Is Western Maryland's Particular Tree

Pipe smokers in the court house the day District Forester H. C. Buckingham happened to notice that giant white pine stump in Garrett county.

And he was right. He had his pipe truck to the court house. When nobody is around, he smokes maple and oak chunks. When the chunks crackle and the smoke curls lazily towards the ceiling it reminds him of his cabins in New Germany.

Actually, this is somewhat exaggerated, of course. But Buck does have a real big pipe. And it's a pleasure to watch him smoke it.

It is also a pleasure to hear him talk about his business which has considerable to do with trees.

Of course, most of Western Maryland's trees have taken off their gay neckties by this time. Only the

Arrangements Completed To Welcome Republican Presidential Nominee

B. & O. To Clear Tracks Near Queen City Station of All Equipment while Special Is Here

When Wendell L. Willkie steps out on the rear platform of his special train tomorrow at 2:35 p.m. at the Queen City Station, it is expected that 15,000 people will be on hand to greet him.

That was the estimate made last night by Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county, who reported that all plans had been completed for handling what will probably be the greatest crowd of people in Cumberland in years.

The rear car of the Willkie Special will be stationed near the Harrison street crossing, Wilson said. The entire area west of Harrison street and up to Baltimore street will be cleared of all railroad equipment and the crowd will be allowed to surge over the tracks and up to the rear platform of the train.</
